FLETCHER BILL

Tax Measure Reported by Committee, With Some Features Changed,

Altered in some of its structural features, the Fictcher bill, providing for the equalization of land taxation, will be again reported to the Senate this morning. The main proposition that the local tax returns shall be revised, if necessary, by the Auditor of Public Accounts, is still the central principle of the proposed law. After considera-tion in the Finance Committee and de-

The Telephone Mensure.

Next came the "anti-cussin'-over-the-telephone" bill, to punish as a misdementor a person who shall curse, abuse or use vulgar, profane or indecent language over any telephone in the State, and imposing a fine or imprisonment for its violation. Mr. Evans offered an amendment cutting out the woord "profane" and eliminating the jail sentence. Mr. Page wanted to know his reason for the amendment. Mr. Evans replied that if somebody over a telephone says something startling and the other fellow says "damn it," he should not be put in jail. He said he had the consent of the patron of the bill, Mr. Pitzhugh, to the amendment, Mr. Page opposed the change.

Mr. Fitzhugh got the floor and made an impassioned address. This was his malden effort. He said he desired to protect women in reduced circumstances, who were forced to carn a living, and who might be, and were, in his section, subjected to insuits over the wires. He received liberal applause. He was, however, interrupted by the arrival of notice that the Senate was ready to proceed with the election of judges. The bill went over and will be the unfinished business for to-day, with Mr. Fitzhugh in possession of the floor.

Mr. Page placed Judge Richard H. Cardwell in nomination for judge of the Supreme Court of Appeals, It was sitting that it should be done, he said, in the hall in which the distinguished jurist had made fanne for himself, The member from Hanover paid a high tribute to his fellow countyman. The momination was seconded by Mr. Cooke.

Judge Alan R. Hanckel was nominated for judge of the Corporation judge separately elected, with no dis-senting votes.

Mesers, Page and Cox were appoint-cel to count the votes, together with a committee from the Senate. The com-mittee reported the election of the judges, and they were declared the successful candidates.

At nine minutes past 2 the House adjourned.

Here and There in the Legislature

The anti-football bill presented in the House yesterday by Mr. Myers is aimed at cutting off the supply rather possible perjury in relation to income returns.

Fish Commissioner W. McDonald Lee appeared before the committee and made his famous two-minute talk asking for a continuance of the existing appropriation of $45,000 a year and $5,000 a year for an emergency fund in case of accidents to boats. He handed the committee back $15,000 of the amount given him two years ago.

The Byrd bill, imposing a tax of 1 per cent, on the gross income of steamboat companies was passed indefinitely at the request of the patron. It is understood that this is the end of the measure.

Senator Edmondson, of Halifax, presented a bill on Thursday allowing the Houston people to vote on a dispensary. That was a startler, but yesterday he presented a like bill affecting the citizens of South Boston. Halifax embraces both these towns. There is reported to be consideranie "wet" sentiment up there, after a trial of the prohibition system. These two potitions, coming right on the wings of State-wide talk, have furnished much interesting discussion and speculation for members of the Senate.

for members of the Senate.

Fire and life insurance are to be taxed at a increase over the present figure if the bill reported by the Senate Finance Committee yesterday prevalls. Fire insurance is raised from 1¼ per cent, to 1¾ per cent. Life insurance is changed from 1 per cent, to 1½ per cent.

What promises to be the longest hearing of the session thus far is that which began yesterday afternoon before the Senate Committee on Itoads and Internal Navigation. It is on the Strode bill, providing that the tax on rolling stock shall be assessed in proportion among the counties through which it passes, and not at the site of the office of the railroad. Should this bill become law Richmond would lose the tax on about $$.000,000 of rolling stock.

The clipping bureau people followed instructions, and now present the history of one year in the life of this especial man. The history ends just after election, and the 20,642 newspaper items found include everything from a three-line editorial mention to full-page illustrated stories. These have been mounted on a 3,200 great sheets of Irish linen paper and bound into three massive volumes. At the head of each item is the name and date of paper clipped from, this information having been put in with a book typewriter. The words thus inserted amount to 153,352.
